Foreword

"SAIL ON AND ON"

High school days are like an adventuresome voyage. We embark for port Junior High and set sail in the good ship W.H.S. for port Graduation. The voyage, made in four laps, is an unfamiliar one. At other times the sea is calm and there is smooth sailing. There are many activities of the crew -- from admirals to apprentice seamen -- to make this voyage a successful one. Regardless of our rank, on this voyage it is our aim to open up new worlds and to sail on and on.

Dedication

We dedicate the ship's log of the 1951-1952 voyage on the W.H.S. to MR. DAVID KEPHART.
Although he has been here only two years, he has won himself a place in our hearts. He is not only our instructor, but our friend. He is the pilot who has inspired us and helped us to sail on and on.

The Captains' Log

It was twelve long years ago when we first set sail. We were a very enthusiastic crew and eagerly awaited the order to lift anchor for we were to sail on the good ship "education" bound for ports unknown.

It was under the able direction of Captains Liles and Plunkett that we were able to complete the first few knots of our voyage. Perhaps these were the most important, for here was laid the basic knowledge for our entire journey.

Captains Baughan, Webb, and Ashcraft were in command of the ship during the second part of our journey. We were still pretty much landlubbers so their job was a difficult one.

During the third leg of our journey, Patterson, Gray, and Cameron were our captains. It was under them that we began to put into practice much we had learned of sailing during the first of our voyage.

Now we were on the ship of Captains Carter and Dunlap; it was they who introduced us to a new subject, geography. Through it we learned much of the sea and sea travel; so we were able to continue our journey with few mishaps.

For the fifth part of our voyage we were transferred to a much larger ship where Pinkston and Allen were captains. It was just before we transferred to this ship that one of our best sailors, Freddy Allen, was forced ashore. Later, however, he was able to board another ship that had sailed the year before ours; thus he completed his sea voyage a year before his original shipmates.

As we sailed onward the seas became rough and we encountered many storms, but under the faithful guidance of long-experienced Captains Boggan and Bennett we were able to master the sea of Knowledge and sailed on.

The seventh part of our journey was an important one, for here several new sailors joined us. They were: Betty Lou Barber, Shirley Carter, Jackie Ray Cockman, Joyce Cook, Mary Jane Liles, J. T. McRae, Nancy Morrison, and Phyllis Russell. We were saddened when one of our beloved captains, Mrs. Capel, passed away. We were now under the command of Captains Huntley and Gulledge.

As our journey continued many shipmates abandoned ship. Yes, in spite of our many pleasures, our journey was a difficult one, and some would not master the treacherous waves of study on the Sea of Knowledge. It was about this time that first mate Shirley Honeycutt and second mate Caroline Austin were chosen. Because of their outstanding achievement in learning they were given the top places of honor in our crew. In chief command of our boat were Captains Huntley, Terrell, and Robinson.

We had become quite salty by the ninth leg of our journey; so for the first time we were allowed to map our own courses. Yes, now we were officially sailing under purple and gold. All good sailors must be physically fit so Captain Shelton guided us through physical education. We encountered high winds and bad weather on the course of algebra, but through the efforts of Captain Martindale we passed through the storm. Much was learned of science (involving the sea) under the leadership of Captain Hall. Under Captains Wall and Griggs we gained many knots on the sea of Knowledge when we studied the clothing, food and speech of a sailor.

We sailed on following much the same courses. The captains aiding us in steering a straight course were Rawls, Hickman, Thomas, and DeLamar. During this time we were first allowed to attend our ship's big banquet. We acted as entertainers and waiters.

As our voyage continued it became more interesting, for now we were more experienced and among the top sailors aboard. Some of us were members of the ship's newly organized band which under the direction of Captain Grant was improving daily. Others were on the staff of the ship's paper "The Seaman Prints" and still others kept the ship's log book (the annual). Yes, we were big wheels aboard for now it was our honor to plan the farewell banquet for sailors soon to complete their journey. The two captains who helped us plan the banquet were Rivers and DeLamar.

The last part of our journey has perhaps been the best for we have held the places of honor aboard ship. We have starred in all the ship's activities including the athletic contests, homecoming celebrations, and the Carolina Christmas Carrousel.

From our class has come the chief cheerleader, the president of the Student Council, the presidents of the Beta, Spanish, Booster, and Monogram Clubs. Both the football co-captains and two of the basketball co-captains are among our shipmates.

In March our ship became a show boat and we entertained all aboard with "Meet Corliss Archer."

In the basketball attendance contest the seniors won the half holiday and twenty-five dollars.

Just before Junior-Senior it was the seniors who helped teach the underclassmen to dance.

Under the editorship of one of our shipmates "The Seaman Prints" received the medalist award from Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Another one of our shipmates was honored by being elected good citizen of the senior class to attend the D.A.R. pilgrimage. Captains Caraway and Sturgis have steered us safely over this, the last leg of our journey.

As our ship sails into harbor and her anchor is dropped, it is with mingled feelings that we prepare to go ashore. We have had many good times aboard ship, and though we are glad for our journey to be ending, it is hard for shipmates to part.

Yes, one long journey is over—but another is just beginning. Soon we will be boarding other ships once more, our destinations unknown. No matter what dangers we face, no matter how hard the task, the seamen of '52 shall ever sail onward.

Ports Ahead

The boat was ready to leave; all passengers were on board. As I walked slowly up the gang plank I turned and took one last look at one of the greater ports of South Africa. It had been ten years since I had left the good ship W.H.S. and had come to South Africa as a Missionary Nurse. Now I was going home to America, to North Carolina, to Wadesboro, my old home town.

The trip was a very short one. Much mechanical progress had been made since I sailed on the W.H.S.

When the boat docked, I went straight to La Guardia Field for the next plane to Wadesboro. I sat down in the lobby at the airport and began to look through a magazine.

What? No! It couldn't be! I quickly turned back the page. There it was in bold letters "Noted Author and Poet to Visit City," and underneath a series of pictures of Charles "Buster" Henry, one of my old shipmates. Remembering how Charles wrote poems and stories while on the W.H.S. I was not surprised to discover that he had made a name for himself in the field of literature. I was enjoying reading the article when the plane for Wadesboro was announced. I hurried to get aboard the giant jetpropelled plane that would take me home. Coming to meet me I saw two charming stewardesses and the pilot. As they came nearer I noticed a resemblance in these three smiling faces that recalled good times in Wadesboro. Stewardesses Mary Ann Brower and Patsy Buff and the pilot, Freddy Gray, greeted me with hearty "Hellos" and "Did you know?" It seemed that Mary Ann and Patsy were still the best of friends and Freddy, loving the "wide open spaces," decided that the "wild blue yonder" was wide enough.

It was only a matter of minutes before the plane landed on the modern airport in Wadesboro. I bade my three friends goodbye and hurried into the large terminal. I was greeted at the reception desk by a tall, slim, well-groomed girl. This receptionist was Betty Lou Barber. She called to my attention other of my old shipmates who were working in the terminal. Doris Hutchinson was private secretary to the big boss, Jimmy Mills. I stopped in for a moment to speak to Jimmy and Doris and then went on my way into the city.

Wadesboro had certainly changed in the ten years I had been away. I walked down the large crowded street in search of a room. I had not walked very far when bright letters on a large marque caught my eye: "HILL HOTEL." I quickly went inside and with my fingers crossed I walked up to the reception desk. I was greeted by the head receptionist, Phyllis Russell. She told me that Becky Jo Hill, another of our shipmates, owned that hotel and a chain of "Hill Hotels." Phyllis told me that Shirley Carter, who was now a famous singer of screen radio, and television, was in the same hotel. She and Caroline Austin, accompanied by Virginia Tyson, were to give a concert that night.

After making arrangements for my rooms, I went outside, hoping to see more old friends. I had not walked very far when I noticed a sign with three familiar names: Betty Smith, Louise Threadgill, and Lucille Burr, "School of Reducing." I went in and was greeted by three very thin women. While talking with Betty, Lucille, and Louise I learned more about my old friends. Georgia Hanna was the most capable beauty operator in town. Gary Teal was now editor of the "Wadesboro Times," the foremost paper of the Carolinas. Robert McLaurin was owner of the McLaurin 5 and 10 cent store.

Mary Jane Liles
Port Sighter

Jack Jenkins, Larry Starling, Billy Brower, and Billy Coble had each gone into the grocery business.

When I went out again I saw in bright letters at the Tysonian Theater: "One Love," starring Beatrice Cranford and Douglas Sellars. Jerry Tyson was owner of the theater. From Jerry I learned that the city had just completed a new Kindergarten building. Patsy Bivens and Peggy Joyce Odom were conducting classes there.

Jerry also told me that many of our old classmates were teaching in the new high school building. Peggy Jean Mayhew was head of the English Literature Department, and Phyllis Gantt was the Home Economics instructor. Libby Overton, Dick Griggs, and George Warner were instructors in the music department. Buddy Liles and Donnie James coached girls' and boys' basketball. The outstanding golf pros for the school were Mickey "Hole-in-one" Bowers and Jackie Ray Cockman.

I was very much surprised to hear that several of our old classmates had left Wadesboro to find careers in other towns and countries. Shirley Honeycutt was now a very noted interior decorator in New York. Nancy Jane Allen had made a name for herself in clothes designing in Paris. Foye Lowe had established the ever so modern and alluring cosmetics, "Lowe." Pat Beachum had become a very successful and famous lawyer. Patsy and Peggy told me that I would find more of my friends working in the new hospital, so I headed in that direction.

The hospital was one of the largest I had ever seen. I stood looking down the long corridor of this beautiful hospital when a voice behind me asked, "Did you want to see someone?" I turned around and recognized the nurse at once. She was Nancy Morrison. While we were standing there talking, two other nurses came along. They were Nell Jarman and Joyce Cook. They told me that Betty Jean Edgeworth was X-Ray Technician there. So together we all went to see Betty. While we were in the lab, someone whispered, "I am your friendly undertaker." Startled, I turned, and there stood Johnny Allen. Johnny, I learned, was one of the most successful funeral directors of Wadesboro.

My vacation had only begun, but I knew it was going to be the most wonderful one I had ever spent.

The captains of "52" had certainly been like the ivy--"bold to leap to heights, though hard to climb."

Cargo on Board

We, the captains of the ship W.H.S., having completed our voyage in the year 1952, do leave on board the following cargo to be used by the seamen who will sail on and on after we have gone ashore!

We, the captains of 1952, leave our heartfelt thanks to Admiral Wildermuth for his ever-present interest in us and his willingness at all times to lend a helping hand.

We leave our gratitude to the faculty for their patience and their understanding.

We leave to Vice-Admiral Baucom our appreciation for all the things he has done to make our last year on board ship a happy one.

I, Johnny Allen, do leave my position of President of the Student Council to the junior so fortunate to obtain it.

We, Nancy Allen and Carolyn Austin, do leave our ability to talk in class without getting caught to Ann Allen and Betty Jean Hill.

We, Jackie Ray Cockman and Charles Henry, do give our ability to be witty, to Harold Eddins, Herbert Jenkins, and Dennis Robeson.

We, Robert McLaurin and Gary Teal, bequeath our continuous arguing in class, to Jeff Covington and Hampton Allen.

We, Patsy Bivens and Shirley Carter, do leave our cute ways to Gay Helms and Jean Trexler.

I, Billy Coble, do leave my ability to come to school every day to Richard Perkins and Leroy Sanford.

We, Beatrice Cranford, Louise Threadgill, and Phyllis Russell, do bequeath our quietness and manners to Peggy Almond, Joyce Shaver, Mary Jane Crider, and Nellie Hill.

We, Billy Brower and Larry Starling, do leave our friendliness to Larry Adcock, Albert Gaddy, and Leonard Honeycutt.

We, Donnie James and Peggy Mayhew, do bequeath our ability to go steady to Bobby Davis and Lula Ann Pope.

We, Pat Beachum and Peggy Joyce Odom, do leave our good looks to Ruby Ann Brown, Georgia Kendall, and Jane Little.

We, Jerry Tyson, Donnie James, Jimmy Mills, Buddy Liles, Johnny Allen, Freddy Gray, Buck Harrington, and Bobby Patterson, do leave our empty places on the football varsity to Teddy Wilkinson, Mathey Davis, Benton Roper, Charles McIntyre, Wiley Teal, and Freddy Wood.

We, Dick Griggs and Shirley Honeycutt, do bequeath our ability to make good grades to Jimmy Short and Claudia Covington.

We, Mary Jane Liles, Nancy Morrison, and Joyce Cook, do leave "the gang" to Tonie Bowers, Mickie Eddins, Loretta Helms, and Alberta Teal.

We, Betty Lou Barber and Betty Jo Smith, do leave our sincerity to Elizabeth Luther, Ellen Sessions, and Sally Jo Coley.

I, George Warner, do leave my ability to play in the band to Jimmy Henry, Bobby Clark, and Haywood Preslar.

We, Mary Ann Brower and Patsy Buff, do leave our ability to be together constantly to Charlotte Howard and Dot McLaurin, Jessie Ruth Honeycutt and Dawn Lovett.

I, Foye Lowe, do leave my ability to talk faster than any other senior, to Jessie Ruth Odom.

Mickey Bowers
Cargo Loader

We, Jack Jenkins and Jerry Tyson, do leave the back table in study hall to Bobby Moore, Leroy Melton, E. J. Previtte, and Earl Deese.

We, Jimmy Mills and Bobby Patterson, do bequeath our ability to learn math to Graham Davis, Richard Reynolds, Freddy Teal, and Paul Drye.

We, Freddy Gray and Vernon Burris, do leave our ability to sleep in English Class to Hampton Allen, Frank Dabbs, and Jimmy Shumaker.

We, Lucille Burr and Nell Jarman, do leave our places in Nutrition to Jo Jarrell and Shirley Kendall.

We, Becky Jo Hill and Libby Overton, do leave our vibrant personalities to Jane Little and Mary Plyde Marsh.

We, Buck Harrington, Buddy Liles, and Douglas Sellars, do leave our fine singing qualities to James Hardward, Edwin Hinson, Leroy Kelly, and Earl Ricketts.

We, Betty Jean Edgeworth and Phyllis Gant, do leave our ability to become confused in class to Mary Plyde Marsh and Ann Webb.

I, Virginia Tyson, do leave my talent to Sherrill Ballard.

We, Doris Hutchinson and Georgia Hanna, do leave our unique laughter to Ann Henry and Helen Deese.

We, the captains of 1952, do leave the sincere hope that the class of '53 will be as grateful for their wonderful homeroom teachers, Miss Sturgis and Miss Caraway, as we have been.

We, the captains of 1952, leave to the juniors all the mischievous tricks we played on our study-hall teachers.

I, Mickey Bowers, leaving the hope that the sailors following us will have as much good fortune as we did, do sign this last will and testament of the captains of 1952.

Anchors Aweigh

Dear Jean,
It's been a pleasure knowing you - I'm really ~~jealous~~ jealous of you - I hope to know - Set well always. Peggy M.

Dear Jean,
I am so sorry that you are going to school in Boston. I will try to see you as often as possible.

Dear Jean,
It's been a pleasure at St. John's. I am going to have classes with the girls this year. I hope to see you next year.
Take care.

Autographs

Dear Jean,
I certainly have missed you so much at school with all of it.
Our looks and I hope you will have some classes.

Dear Jean,
I finally found a little corner the classroom set enough to tell you we enjoyed being in class with you all the time. And we enjoyed you the best of everything. Love
Jane

Dear,

It certainly has been fun here with all of you at W.H.S. Along with my work I certainly have had fun. I will never forget you coming in to see me.

Good luck always,

Love,

Barbara Jordan

Dear Jean,
I've certainly enjoyed being in several classes with you. Our friendship & hope our school year continues through & we may have the best & love always.
X Success come from & always Frances Miller

Dear Jean,

I've had lots of fun with you this year. You are a sweet girl.

Ilan

I have enjoyed being with you this year. Best of luck to you

Jackie Roy

Dear

I have enjoyed being in homeroom with you this year.
Lots of luck in the future.

Dear Jean,
It has been so nice to you in 1922 but I hope we will have had 1923 just as good next year.

Cats of feet in the rest of your High School days. ~~Good~~ ^{Best} regards
Teddy Grey

Dear Jean,
I have high hopes for you.
and I hope you have enjoyed my classes with you as I hope I enjoyed yours.
More next year. Be sweet and be true to Donald.

Dear Jean,
Have enjoyed being in Glee Club with you this year. It has been fun being in P. Y. P. W. with you also.
Always,
Jennie

Dear Jean.

I wish you the best of luck always. Be good!
Love,
Nancy

Dear Jean,

I want to wish you all the luck in the world. Just think!
Next year, you'll be a Jr. You'll realize how fun it is.

Love,
Ruby

Jean,

It's been nice knowing you and I wish you all the luck and a success in the rest of your school life.

Dear Jean
It has been a pleasure well, I guess we will be leaving high school very this place soon, I have with you this year really enjoyed my freshman year, which has been an introduction to high school.
Best of luck

Dear Jean,

I hope you will miss me next year. Cause I do' am going to miss you and all the good people of W. H.S.

She enjoyed that fine meal that you served me at the Jr.-Sr. You looked real cute.

Luck in your remaining years of school.
